

Emily Wang, M.S., M.A., Ph.D.

Dr. Wang is a Clinical Psychologist and Program Director at Hull Child and Family Services, where she coordinates the NMT certification process. Dr. Wang's many roles at Hull include clinical work with children and families, psychological assessment, program development, implementation, treatment planning, training and consultation. Her leadership was recently recognized in her appointment to Hull's Executive Management Team.

Dr. Wang first worked with Dr. Perry in 1994 when he was called in as a consultant following an explosion at an Ammonia Plant in Sioux City, Iowa. The experience shifted the focus of her clinical work to trauma-related care and disaster mental health support. During her 4 years in Sioux City, Iowa, Dr. Wang provided mental health support to victims of the Oklahoma City Bombing, to victims of the devastation from the Portland, Oregon floods, and to victims from a variety of other traumatizing experiences affecting residents within the state of Iowa.

Dr. Emily Wang holds a Master's of Science in Educational Psychology, a Master's of Art, and a Doctorate of Philosophy in Clinical Psychology and has been a licensed and registered psychologist since 1993. Her experiences include work in the educational systems in San Diego and Calgary, as well as a variety of organizations including the Sonia Shankman Orthogenic School in Chicago, Marian Behavioral Medicine Associates, the Boys and Girls Home in Sioux City, and several adjunct assistant professor positions.

Dr. Wang is passionate about the individual support and therapeutic interventions she can provide to children and families through her understanding of brain development, early childhood development, and significant relationships as recognized by NMT. She also values the importance of influencing change as it relates to policies and decision making. She believes that the expanding knowledge in the field provides hope and optimism in her professional work and has been equally valuable in her personal life as a mother of two young children.
